

Definately!! I have been wondering about this one for years, why spend big cash for a broadband tuner in a TV only to be junked as soon as you get it home by your favorite local CABLE TV MONOPOLY! The dam decoder/descrambler thing should be a card you plugin to the rear of the TV set if you desire, not a dam STB which contains all sort of crap you never use (not to mention it's own remote)... Please, see common sense here in your rulings...
